

Heritage radio station KICD in Spencer, Iowa is looking to hire the next ag media superstar. Past farm reporters have gone on to jobs at WHO, Iowa Public Television, Iowa State University, Iowa Farm Bureau, Iowa Soybean Association, and even the National Pork Board.

We are located 90 minutes out of Sioux Falls, S.D. in prime ag country and the popular Iowa Great Lakes tourist area. KICD is owned and operated by Saga Communications – one of the good ones!

General knowledge of agriculture and a mastery of farm markets is a must. Limited radio experience is ok if you have a passion for broadcasting and are eager to learn and take direction. We like to jump on big stories as they break and deliver them in a fresh, crisp, contemporary format. Reading wire copy is not an option. We value creativity and the desire to win.

Duties include – but are not limited to – farm market casts, conducting interviews, and writing great local copy. In time you must be able to operate the farm department in the farm director's absence; and cover meetings, news conferences, and ag events on your own. Some travel is required.

Whether you are a veteran farm reporter, or looking for your first big break in ag media, we encourage you to apply.

Contacts: Farm Director George Bower gbower@spencerradiogroup.com or General Manager Dave Putnam dputnam@spencerradiogroup.com

#